growing people and organisations

Winner of several awards for innovation and quality, the Springboard Women's Development Programme enables women to give more and get more out of their work. They identify where they are going, and then develop the skills, 'can-do' attitude and the confidence to get on with it. All useful assets at any time, but especially valuable to organisations dealing with change.

Who is it for?

For all employers wanting the benefits of developing a traditionally under-developed sector of staff: non-management women. Of course, developing people is good management practice anyway, but there are countless organisational benefits as well as having staff full of enthusiasm, ideas, skills and the energy to succeed – especially in difficult times.

Springboard is designed for women from all backgrounds, ages and stages of their lives. Although the programme was initially written and developed for women in non-management grades, over its life women from all levels have participated in and benefited from the programme.

“ The Springboard programme is highly relevant to the NHS today, as it goes through a major period of change. The programme is cost effective and meets the organisation's needs by developing the individual who becomes more effective at work. I can thoroughly recommend it for any NHS Trust. ”
Rainy Faisey, Deputy Director of HR
Oxford Radcliffe Hospitals NHS Trust

What does it consist of?

Delivered over three months, it consists of five simple, and yet powerful, ingredients, all grounded in reality:

1. The superb Springboard workbook, regularly updated and covering all the material for the entire programme – there's no need for anything extra.
2. Four action-packed one-day workshops spread over three months. Staff are only out for one day a month.
3. Inspiring role models – people that staff can really relate to, and who will put a spring in their step.
4. The encouragement of effective networks within the group, so their progress becomes self-perpetuating.
5. A local support system to keep them going.

How do you access Springboard?

The Springboard programme is delivered exclusively by us, and by trainers who are especially trained and licensed by us. This means you get the best value from the programme. Contact us to deliver a programme for you, or to ask us about the trainer licensing process. Having your own internal trainers delivering the programme is bound to be a cost-effective option worth considering.

What results can you expect?

In a recession, there may not be many promotions available. After attending the Springboard Women's Development Programme, some women steam up their career ladder or gain new qualifications. Others stay in the same job, but with a new sense of purpose, an open approach to change, and a more positive attitude.

The managers of participants report being delighted with the changes in their staff. These changes have a knock-on effect, enabling the managers themselves to perform better. They say their staff are more focussed and confident after attending Springboard. Participants bring their managers solutions instead of problems, take on more responsibility, are more positive and have improved communication skills.

Here is a selection of the impressive results you can expect:

84% of participants say they are 'more open to change' since attending the Springboard Women's Development Programme.

83% say they have 'a more positive attitude'.

80% say they have 'increased confidence/self esteem'.

79% say they are 'better at managing change'.

78% have 'taken on more responsibility'.

75% say they can provide evidence that they are 'better at problem solving'.

67% can provide evidence that they are making a 'better use of resources'.

What about a programme for men?

The Navigator development programme for men does exactly the same job as Springboard – but for non-management men. For added benefit, run both programmes. Contact us for details.

“ Springboard is tried and tested in the police context, has an impact on women in the police and delivers results. It is a key component in achieving the Gender Agenda. I have no hesitation in recommending it throughout the police service. ”
Julie Spence, Chief Constable,
Cambridgeshire Constabulary
